"My name is Lee Ellen King. I look forward to working on the Board of Ice Alaska and appreciate your confidence in me. I live in Charleston, SC but my heart belongs in Fairbanks. I am a retired English teacher and photography and travel are my passions. Anthony Bourdain, noted foodie, explore and storyteller, once said that 'travel leaves marks on your memory, on your consciousness, on your heart and your body. You take something with you. Hopefully, you leave something good behind.' Fairbanks, Ice Alaska and the ice carving championships captured my heart seven years ago and I have been volunteering ever since, making wonderful friends along the way. It is my privilege and honor to give something back to this organization that has given me such joy."
